Alfred

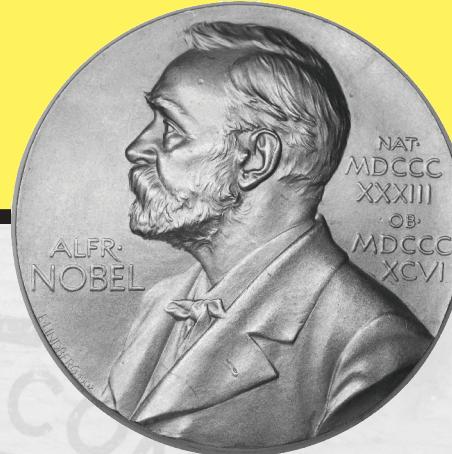

"If I have a thousand ideas and only one turns out to be good, I am satisfied."

Alfred Nobel was born in Sweden in 1833 to Immanuel and Andriette Nobel. To support his family, Immanuel left his wife and children in Stockholm and moved to St. Petersburg, Russia. He was successful in his business which allowed him to bring his family to St. Petersburg in the year 1842.

Alfred was well educated. He was fluent in Swedish, Russian, French, English and German. He had a passion for literature, poetry, chemistry and physics. He furthered his education by travelling to Sweden, Germany, France and the United States.

During his time in Paris (1850-1852), Alfred worked in the laboratory of a famous chemist, T. Jules Pelouze. This was where he met

Nobel Peace Prize Medal

Ascanio Sobrero, the inventor of nitroglycerine, a highly explosive liquid.

In 1862, Alfred began experimenting with nitroglycerin. This investigation resulted in the invention of dynamite. He also invented the blasting cap, which could be ignited by lighting a fuse.

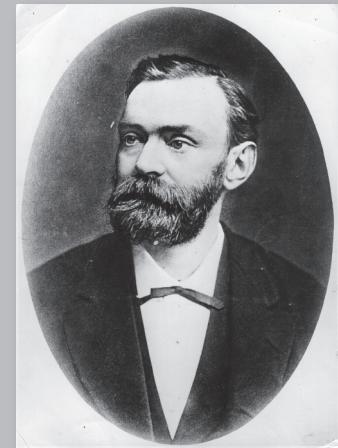

Alfred had a close friend named Bertha von Suttner. Bertha was active in the peace movement and wrote the famous book, Lay Down Your Arms. This friendship had an influence on him. In Alfred's will, he left much of his money to be used to give prizes to people or organizations who promoted peace. Ironically, five years after his death, the first person awarded the Nobel Peace Prize was Bertha von Suttner.
